

DR ANNE KERR

Dr Anne Kerr has been a driving force in Mott MacDonald's businesses relating to the development of future cities and urban living over the last decade. Having recognised the need to focus attention on developing themes of holistic community development she established the Future Cities Working Group which coordinated thought leaders and practitioners across the Group some years ago. This Working Group has now become a Global Initiative which sets targets for growth across the entire business, considers the development of communities and connectors in a holistic manner, and encompasses the twelve sectors within which we provide consultancy services. From the start of her career Anne has been engaged in the delivery of projects from concept through implementation in an integrated manner. The benefits of this approach can be seen in community and new town developments in various countries.
